Once upon a time, seven young women with backgrounds in comedy, musicals and improv came to know and love those meek and male-dependent icons, the Disney Princesses. Through darkly satirical, fast-paced sketches and polished song and dance, they explored old conventions and their nostalgia for childhood heroines and created a hit show called Princess Cabaret. On their adventure to the Edinburgh Festival Fringe, they amassed numerous 4- and 5-star reviews, a legion of new fans and a queue of would-be princes. And they had so much fun they decided to return.

If you missed it last year, then it will be brand new! If you saw it then feel free to sing along.

Princess Cabaret contains high-level coarse language and adult themes. It also includes musical parodies, wicked humour and exploding stereotypes. With writer/director Brydie Lee-Kennedy portraying Ariel, musical director Sophie Miller as Tinkerbell, Jo Bourke as Belle, Vivienne Egan as Jasmine, Emelia May as Aurora, Courtney Powell as Cinderella, and Alexandra Plim as Snow White. Princess Cabaret sticks it to those men, and women, who've always thought that a princess was nothing without her prince!

Formed out of Sydney University's Women's Revue and managed by Amanda Jessup and Brydie Lee-Kennedy, Tumbleweed Theatrical Productions' unique brand of comedy has delighted audiences across Australia, and received critical acclaim at The Melbourne International Comedy Festival, the Adelaide Fringe and Edinburgh Festival Fringe.
